

MINORITY PROTECTION

Scientific Journal of the Institute for the Protection of Minority Rights

Call for papers - Minority Protection Journal

General description of the Journal

Minority Protection is the scientific journal of the Institute for the Protection of Minority Rights (IPMR). It is devoted to publishing articles dealing with contemporary issues pertaining to traditional national minorities of Europe. While the content of the journal focuses on legal studies, it intends to maintain an interdisciplinary orientation, encouraging authors to submit papers in the fields of political science, sociology, history, as well as cultural studies. It aims to stimulate the scientific dialogue on and the exchange between scholars engaged in issues regarding the traditional national communities of Europe.

The journal has a double-blind peer review system, and publishes at least two issues annually in both Hungarian and English languages in print and online. The journal is published open access, and is available online on the homepage of IPMR (www.kji.hu) for all students, scientists, experts, practitioners and researchers who are interested in this field.

The editorial board is composed of university professors, and policy practitioners who are affiliated with seven different universities or institutions from five different countries (Hungary, Romania, Serbia, Slovakia, and Ukraine).

The editors highly encourage younger scholars to get in touch with the editorial team, and seek guidance in the process of preparing a manuscript prior to submitting contributions, or to discuss a publication idea to see how well it would fit within the journal.

Articles can be submitted at any time throughout the year. If you submit a work that does not fit within the current theme, the editors will keep your article on file to consider its publication at a later stage. Please note that the editors may randomly choose to submit studies for anti-plagiarism check.

Author(s) will be entitled to two copies of the printed journal free of charge.

Papers for consideration should be sent via e-mail to the editor-in-chief of Minority Protection, Dr. Attila Dabis: dabis.attila@kji.hu.

Text Format - General Rules (see detailed guide for authors in the journal template)

The submitted manuscripts should be in the range of 25.000 to 45.000 characters with spaces (excluding abstract, appendices and references).

Each paper must include an abstract of 200 to 400 words, which should give readers a brief and concise summary of your paper, as well as a Bibliography about the sources referred to in the study. Further basic formatting criteria:

Papers must be submitted as a doc, or docx file. The font for the main body of the text should be Book Antiqua 11 pt., with 2,5 cm margins and 1,15 cm line spacing.